Summary - THE VIRTUAL THAT CONNECTS PSYCHOLOGICAL INTERVENTION AT THE TIME OF COVID. SHARING, DISTANCING, VIRTUAL PROXIMITY. As Adlerian therapists, in search and protection of social sentiment, we are questioning ourselves on which paths of well-being to follow in a therapeutic logic where closeness, as a profound experience of care, is opposed to distancing, as an indispensable way of salvation. The virtual relationship during lockdown allowed for a preservation of bonds avoiding people the risk of deep feelings of loneliness, isolation and marginalization. The interaction through the virtual allows the continuity of visual interactions, and together with an authentic empathic involvement comes the middle the therapeutic relationship. It is the quality of the encounter between patient and therapist and the empathic intensity, even through the virtual, that determine the effectiveness of the intervention.

Summary - THE VILLAGE TEST AT THE TIME OF THE PANDEMIC: CABIN SYNDROME AND CHILDHOOD TRAUMA. Starting from the research of the Gaslini Hospital on the psychological state of children and families a few weeks after the lockdown, and from the emergence of symptoms attributable to the so-called Cabin Syndrome, the article aims to detect its effects through the Village Test. After a brief theoretical-methodological introduction of the test, some cases of subjects who were administered before the pandemic and immediately after the lockdown are presented, in order to verify any differences.

Several subjects in the Village Test narrowed their range of action, closing themselves in a state of greater protection and compacting, and in some cases eliminating the aspects that lead back to the relationship with others. Finally, a hypothesis for detecting the trauma through the Village Test is presented.
